Four members reappointed to Kansas Judicial Council; new member to complete vacated term

TOPEKA—Four members of the Kansas Judicial Council were reappointed to four-year terms by Chief Justice Lawton R. Nuss of the Kansas Supreme Court.

Serving until June 30, 2021, are J. Nick Badgerow of Overland Park, Kansas Court of Appeals Judge Stephen D. Hill of Topeka, Geary County District Judge Maritza Segarra of Junction City, and Sarah "Sally" Shattuck of Ashland.

Additionally, Barton County District Judge Mike Keeley of Great Bend was appointed to serve the remainder of the term of retiring Labette County District Judge Robert J. Fleming of Parsons. Keeley, who also is chief judge of the 20th Judicial District, will serve from July 15, 2017, until June 30, 2019.

The Judicial Council reviews the administration of justice in Kansas. It can recommend to the Supreme Court or the Kansas Legislature changes regarding specific areas of the law or rules used by the courts. The council also can be asked to draft legislation and court rules. The council produces books and manuals, publishes legal forms for use in the state's courts, and prepares jury instructions.

The 10-member council includes one member of the Supreme Court, one member of the Court of Appeals, two district court judges and four practicing attorneys, all appointed by the chief justice. The chairs of the House and Senate judiciary committees also are members.

Supreme Court Justice Marla J. Luckert currently serves as chair of the council. Other members are Joseph W. Jeter of Hays, Stephen E. Robison of Wichita, Sen. Rick Wilborn of McPherson, and Rep. Blaine Finch of Ottawa.
